Dear Bim and Pardeep,

Thank you so much for the incredible support of The Sandhu Charitable Foundation. We are delighted to confirm safe receipt of your donation of £25,000. Your gift was instrumental in inspiring others to give more towards Prostate Cancer UK's life-changing work and meant that our Christmas Appeal raised a whopping total of £71, 256.

Thanks to you, your fellow Pioneers, and other generous Prostate Cancer UK supporters, men like Alan will have more time with their families.

“When my doctor uttered the words ‘you have prostate cancer’, my world began to crumble. At most, I had 10 years to live. That was 11 years ago. While there is no cure for advanced prostate cancer, there is vital research being undertaken to slow it down and help men like me live longer. I was offered a new treatment called abiraterone, a drug which shuts down the production of testosterone, the hormone that drives the cancer to swell and multiply.

In four years, I’ve seen four grandchildren be born and not just one first school day, but three. But I am one of the lucky ones. Around 1 in 3 men who are given abiraterone don’t get any benefit from it, so it’s imperative that a test be made available to find these cases before time is wasted on the wrong treatment. Thankfully, Prostate Cancer UK have developed this test and will soon start a trial to show the difference this blood test makes to men’s lives. This vital research, led by Dr Gerhardt Attard, could soon be rolled out across the NHS, giving men the invaluable gift of more time with those they love.”

*Your support makes progress like this possible.
With all our thanks and best wishes,
Naomi*
