Summer 2018

Matched funding success

The Sandhu Charitable Foundation kindly offered to provide matched funding for donations made to our 2017 Christmas fundraising appeal which focused on the advancement of precision medicine for prostate cancer. Because of their generosity, all donations made through the Christmas appeal before 31 December were matched up to £25,000.

We had a fantastic response from our Pioneers and other supporters, and in total the initiative raised over £70,000. That's an astonishing sum towards our Precision Medicine – Making Treatment Personal appeal. This is the first of its kind of research, that aims to discover and test new treatment combinations in men with advanced prostate cancer as soon as they're diagnosed. This means using each man's cancer DNA to discover the genetic change that's driving his prostate cancer, and matching it to the treatment that is most likely to halt the disease.

Thank you so much to Bim and Pardeep Sandhu, and their colleague Mike O'Shea for their incredible generosity and of course to those of you who could lend your support.
